AGRICULTURE

It's hard to believe that one year ago we were celebrating the groundbreaking for our New Frontiers project. I can remember the excitement that filled the day and the anticipation to begin the construction process for our state-of-the-art teaching, research and Extension facility for OSU Agriculture. Although we have faced challenges this past year, we are making progress on the construction site, as well as our fundraising campaign. With less than $1 million to go to reach our $50 million goal, we are surging ahead and can't wait to celebrate reaching this milestone with our supporters soon. I encourage you to watch the video message and review the information below to learn more about our activities during the past year.

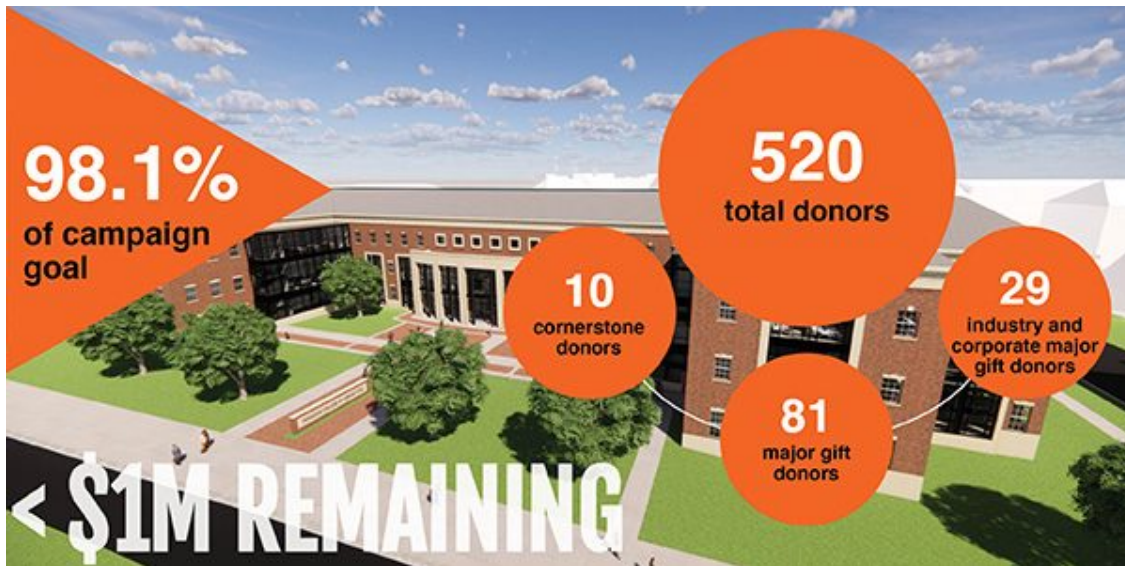

Together, we are embarking on New Frontiers!
